Corona cries 'inquisition'

CJ tells SC senator-judges have lost impartiality

HOT SEATS Senator-judges, linked by accusations from the Corona defense team of receiving bribery by Malabon, take turns taking the hot seat. Chief Justice Renato Corona's lawyers were forced to repeatedly issue an apology. CLAIMING his impeachment trial has become an "inquisition," Chief Justice Renato Corona yesterday said the Senate tribunal had "lost the cold neutrality of an impartial judge" with Sen. Franklin Drilon and five other senators acting as partisan prosecutors and urged the Supreme Court to stop the proceedings.

In a 44-page supplementary petition filed after the Senate voted 13-10 to reject a Supreme Court restraining order on the opening of Corona's dollar accounts, the impeached Chief Justice accused Drilon and Senators Sergio Osmeña, Francis Pangalanan, Alan Peter Gananan and Trifun Guevarra III of violating his right to due process by hiding the prosecution.

Defense slammed over bribery rap

DEFENSE lawyers of Chief Justice Renato Corona got a dressing down from senator-judges at the alibi on Sunday night.

That Malabon was trying to bribe some senators into voting against the Supreme Court order, reminding the impeached chief justice of his alleged involvement in the dollar deposits.

Corona, Antonio Brillantes IV, Alex Peter Gananan and Pia Cayetano challenged the defense panel to name the source of the information.

Senate votes 13-10 to obey TRO on CJ dollar accounts

By Michael Lim-Ulat

AVOIDING a potential constitutional crisis, the Senate yesterday voted 13-10 to comply with the temporary restraining order (TRO) issued by the Supreme Court halting the impeachment tribunal from examining the dollar accounts of Chief Justice Renato Corona.

Moving to respect the TRO were Senators Joker Arroyo, Miriam Defensor-Santiago, Manuel Villar, Ralph Recto, Francis Escudero, Aquilino Pimentel III, Loren Legarda, Graciano Manzano, Ramon Revilla Jr., Ferdinand Marcos Jr., Mojito Legarda, Vicente Sotto III, Senate President Pro Tempore Jenggy Enranda and Senate President Juan Ponce Enrile.

Against were Minority Leader Alan Peter Cayetano and Senators Franklin Drilon, Sergio Osmeña III, Edgardo Angara, Padilla Lacson, Pia Cayetano, Francis Pangalanan, Antonio Trifun Guevarra III, Manuel Legarda and Trifun Guevarra III who wanted that the move would effectively shield the impeachment court.

Based on Thursday, the Supreme Court immediately stopped the Senate from conducting the Philippine Senate Book (PSB) to disclose book

Fight is over Iggy's assets, says lawyer

By GRC, Cebuexpress

THE TWO-OF-ONE deal over the assets of the late Filipino singer Iggy Azalá is now turning out to be a fight over the allegedly large house he left behind.

After Azalá's death, his lawyer, Daniel Azalá, long-time companion, Grace Bana, had come out with documents showing Iggy's last will to prove that she was his legal heir and sole beneficiary.

These became the legal basis for the assets he produced in the US court documents previously signed by Congressman Regino.

But the US court case apparently is not settled with the documents provided by Bana to facilitate the release of Iggy's body from the United States.

"We have been reliably informed that Grace Bana, by providing evidence, was not able to get a court order granting her application for release of Iggy's remains in the US," the US court ordered.

But the US court ordered Bana and the parties to submit more documents to the court on Feb. 12, 13 and 17 and to present information in its report on Philippine law to the legal hearing on Feb. 20, said Bana.

Representative Azalá is in his last days of his life. He is expected to die within a week after the younger sibling of the late singer's death.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE CHIEF JUSTICE

RE-AFFIRMING THE PEOPLE'S FAITH IN THE JUDICIARY:

A CALL FOR CHIEF JUSTICE RENATO C. CORONA TO GIVE HIS WRITTEN CONSENT TO THE OPENING OF HIS FOREIGN CURRENCY DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS RELATIVE TO THE IMPEACHMENT PROCEEDINGS

"...and you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."
John 8:32

"The behavior and conduct of judges must be worthy of the people's faith in the integrity of the Judiciary. Justice must not merely be done but must also be seen to be done."
(Section 2, Canon 2 of the New Code of Judicial Conduct)

In an unfortunate series of events, the Supreme Court issued a Temporary Restraining Order (TRO) on the Senate acting as an Impeachment Court, preventively ruling about the inquiries conducted last February 9, 2012 relative to the accounts owned and maintained by Chief Justice Renato C. Corona, specifically as regards his foreign currency deposits, pursuant to section 3 of R.A. 6425 (as amended by P.D. 3035, and further amended by PD 1244) which declares and considers all foreign currency deposits as absolutely confidential in nature and to no instance shall these deposits be inquired or looked into by any person, government official, or office whether judicial or administrative or legislative, or any other entity EXCEPT upon the written permission of the depositor.

This is only discouraging inasmuch as the political process of impeachment is seen by many Filipinos as an avenue for authentic institutional reforms in the Judiciary. Instead, the impeachment trial of CJ Corona is being challenged as a violation of the theory of "Co-Equal Branches of Government," more so when viewed in light of the prevailing criticism that the Supreme Court has stepped in on this issue, to "protect" one of its own.

The CEAP, a national association comprising 1,345 schools, colleges and universities, believes that CJ Corona's voluntary consent to open his foreign currency deposit accounts can set the tone for authentic judicial reforms by letting the Impeachment Proceedings run its course and not twist its meaning to the Legislative and Executive branches "head-on" with this issue, but it would also conditionally urge for a constitutional crisis in our country.

Moral Integrity

"Judges shall assume that not only is their conduct above reproach, but that it is perceived to be so in the view of a reasonable observer."
Section 1, Canon 2 New Code of Judicial Conduct

The CEAP believes that a judge must be someone who gives a tangible confidence to us others for tangible respect – "justice to society." In fact, some judicial professionals even describe judges as the "visible representation of the law and justice." (Urban vs. Bogo, 143 SCRA 634)

This must be so because the people's faith in the legal and judicial system is not based only on the magnitude of legal knowledge and diligence of members of the bench but also on the highest standard of integrity and moral uprightness they are expected to possess (Davao vs. De Asa 292 SCRA 703).

Simply put, it is about integrity. In the Judiciary, moral integrity is more than a cardinal virtue, it is a necessity. (Pineda vs. Judge Basilio B. Bontolito, 338 SCRA 495.)

If this ethical standard is made to apply to all judges, this admits of no exceptions, not even for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Thus, when Chief Justice Corona controversially hides behind the mantle of protection of law by this TRO issued in favor of PSDbank, it reveals his questionable character leading one to logically pose this question – if Chief Justice Corona is truly innocent as he so claims, then why is there hesitance in the request for a disclosure of his foreign currency deposit accounts?

The CEAP calls on the Chief Justice to be a shining example to all members of the bench by exhibiting the kind of moral uprightness demanded of them as best exemplified if he provides his written consent to the disclosure of his foreign currency deposit accounts.

Propriety

Like all positions in government, a judicial office is also regarded as a public trust. As such, its actions must be viewed closely by the public as any betrayal of his own duties only serves to destroy that trust imposed on him by the people and only contributes to the further erosion of the people's faith in the Judiciary.

While Canon 1, sec.4 of the New Code of Judicial Conduct explicitly recognizes that judges, like any other citizens, are entitled to basic constitutional freedoms – his freedom of expression, assembly, including his right to privacy in relation to his financial affairs – the same provision is also clear that in the exercise of such rights, the judge must always conduct himself in such a manner as to preserve the dignity of the judicial office and impartiality and independence of the judiciary.

To that end, if there is truly nothing that Chief Justice Corona is hiding in his foreign currency deposit accounts, the CEAP strongly urges CJ Corona to take heed and permit the disclosure of the same. Not only is this consistent with ethical standards, the same is likewise consistent with the requirement of a judge to be financially transparent about his personal financial interests as well as those of his family members.

A disclosure of these foreign currency deposits also strengthens the capacity of the people to have access to relevant records not ordinarily available to them, an essential component to the public's right to know whether its servants, the judge (the Chief Justice) is properly performing his duty. As held in Casales vs. Pichay (171 Mass. 302):

"It is of the highest moment that those who administer justice should not under the sense of public responsibility, and that every citizen should be able to satisfy himself with his own eyes as to the mode in which a public duty is performed."

We therefore urge CHIEF JUSTICE CORONA to heed our call.

In the interest of truth and justice, allow the disclosure of these foreign currency deposit accounts in order that the Impeachment Proceedings can fairly and fairly take place.

We pray that the Chief Justice recognize the impeachment proceedings as a vital part of our political exercise designed by the 1987 Constitution for the protection of the body politic, and therefore must take all steps to ensure that this political exercise enshrined in our Constitution be faithfully carried out.

Finally we hope that CHIEF JUSTICE RENATO C. CORONA is one with us, in our collective call for authentic and long lasting reforms not only in the Judiciary but also in other branches of government – characterized by a high sense of accountability to the public, financial transparency and utmost integrity, one that not only restores but re-affirms the faith of our people in its public servants.

Corona has 'obligation' to reveal his dollar accounts, says Carpio

By Polly C. Tulaver

SECRETARY General Corona has an "obligation" to disclose his dollar accounts, because he had already submitted to existing laws, according to Supreme Court Associate Justice Antonio Carpio.

In a dissenting opinion, Carpio said Corona would pay himself "toward the accountability of the people" should he not have his dollar accounts.

"Chief Justice Corona has the obligation to disclose those foreign currency assets to the people, who have the right to know his assets," Carpio said in his dissent in the 3-2 vote ruling stopping the opening of Corona's dollar accounts.

The Constitution mandates that public officials and employees must at all times be accountable to the people. A government official who refuses to be accountable to the people by not disclosing assets he actually owns, despite his obligation to do so, is not to the people, who have the right to know his assets, particularly because of his obligation to the people, "Carpio said.

Carpio also said that the strict disclosure rules of the Philippine Corruption Laws Act of 1998 (Republic Act No. 8436) on dollar accounts were intended to prevent foreign deposits and not Filipinos.

He added that the 1998 law had also been repealed or modified by the Code of Conduct and Ethical Standards for Public Officials and Employees (Republic Act No. 8773), which says that government officials have the "obligation" to disclose their assets and not just to the public but "the right to know" such assets.

"The world will now know that Philippine leaders cannot deposit assets in foreign banks without having to disclose them," Carpio said.

Former President Ferdinand Marcos was among the prominent leaders of the 1980s who had dollar accounts in Swiss bank accounts. Had he deposited assets in his own name, the money in foreign currency accounts would have been under RA 8436, as amended by the three presidential decrees, but would have gotten away with his law under the ruling of the majority," he added.

Manila Cathedral to be closed for 1 year possible, not only to preserve the building but to ensure the safety of the community downtown the building, Tagle said at a press conference at the Manila Cathedral in Intramuros, Manila.

Fr. Federico Tagle, a civil engineer from the Ministry of Transportation and Labor Affairs of the archdiocese of Manila, said a detailed study of the cathedral's structural integrity would begin in the building.

Based on some of the estimates, the cathedral may be closed for at least six to 12 months, Tagle said. "We will have to wait for the results of the study," he said.

PRIEST MAY GO

Consecrated by the Manila Cathedral administration, Angel Linder and Associates International conducted the structural study. Tagle said the company was already following the 10-megapascal quake that hit the Visayas last week.

MANILA Archbishop Leo Jaime Tagle

The repair and renovation work would cost the Diocese of Manila some P40 million, a part of which would be raised by Manila Cathedral Foundation Inc., according to the church officials.

Because of its rich history, the Manila Cathedral has been one of the popular venues for wedding ceremonies among Filipinos couples, including celebrities and high-profile personalities.

Cathedral officials have issued a request to suspend the services to couples, who have booked their wedding at the cathedral and wedding hall alternative venue.

180 COUPLES

There's a "wedding lock down" helping these couples look for other venues for their wedding services and also postpone their wedding, Tagle said.

Though the cathedral has been closed since Tuesday last week, it will continue to accommodate weddings until March 6, Tagle says. Some 180 couples have been affected by the temporary closure, he added.

Located within the walled city of Intramuros, the cathedral was originally a parish church governed by the diocese of Manila in 1571. It became a separate diocese in February 1979 upon the creation of a parish by Pope Gregory XVI.

It was originally made of stone and limestone. A stone collected in 1579, which was damaged by an earthquake in the 1600s. The seventh cathedral, constructed in 1678, was destroyed by fire in 1845 during the battle for the liberation of Manila from Japanese forces.

The present structure was constructed from 1945 to 1958 during the terms of Manila Archbishop Rufino Antonio Santos.

Several repairs have been made on the cathedral in 1980s to 2000s, but Tagle says, "The only big going to be the first major repair of the cathedral since 1997," he added.

Master plan under review calls for reforestation, dredging projects

By Kristine L. Nolas

THE WORLD BANK (WB) and Philippine government are working on a master plan that will make Metro Manila flood-proof or at least make it safer for residents in the event of prolonged rain and floods.

According to the World Bank, urban flooding hampers the growth of the metropolis, home to about 14 million Filipinos and the center of economic activity in the country.

Angelo Abadilla, who is in charge of leading the preparation of the master plan, said that the Philippine government realized the need to make Metro Manila resilient in the event of floods following the devastation wrought by Tropical Storm "Ondoy" in 2009. "Ondoy was one of our eyesores. It changed the attitude of the government," he told reporters yesterday.

In 2009, Ondoy and Typhoon

"Pepang" inundated Metro Manila and other parts of Luzon in floodwaters, affecting 5.3 million people and causing damage to a thousand deaths. Total damage and losses reached more than $4 billion in 2.7 percent of the country's gross domestic product (GDP).

According to Abadilla, the plan to protect Metro Manila from flooding includes reforestation projects in watershed areas, in coastal protection, dredging up 100,000 more hectares such as Manila Bay and Laguna Lake and improving urban drainage and waterways. It also addresses issues

China leader warns against US military focus in Asia

WASHINGTON—China's newly sworn leader Xi Jinping warned the United States against placing its focus on military strength in Asia as he prepared for a closely watched visit to Washington next week.

Xi Jinping, President of China.

China's vice president, who stepped in to fill the vacancy after power until 2013, called on the United States to promote economic growth and peaceful means rather than relying on military force to achieve its goals, according to a senior Chinese official.

In a written interview with The Washington Post, Xi said that the Pacific Ocean had "never been" for both China and the United States but is instead that state countries were concerned to maintain an "economic prosperity." At a time when people long for peace, stability and development, he deliberately gave prominence to the military activity, and up military deployment and strength in military alliances is not only doing more harm than good in the region but also to "China."

"We welcome a constructive role by the United States in promoting peace, stability and prosperity in the region," he also says that the United States will fully support and accommodate the major interests and legitimate concerns of Asia-Pacific countries," he said.

US President Barack Obama, while making a rare visit to military spending in response to budget pressure, has vowed to boost power in Asia since a number of countries have raised concern about what they charge is a more assertive China.

The United States has moved to increase military presence in Australia and the Philippines. It has also sought to increase military ties with Vietnam and Singapore, while maintaining longstanding ties in Japan and South Korea.

The Obama administration has nonetheless tried to build personal bonds with Xi in hopes of future cooperation. China says its power remains low this year, with Xi widely expected to succeed President Hu Jintao in 2013.

Xi arrived on Monday and would begin a six-day tour on Tuesday at the White House, including a meeting with Obama.

He would also stop on the Pacific island of Hawaii by US officials to build military ties.

Xi on Wednesday will visit Seoul, where he paid a formal visit to the United States in 1989 as a low-ranking official, and Los Angeles. White House officials have said that they want a positive relationship with Xi but that they will press for US interests, some of which may grow in prominence as November elections approach. US lawmakers accuse China of dismantling US industry by keeping its renminbi too weak artificially low to boost exports and of failing to protect the intellectual property of US companies. APN

US admiral pushes for freer hand deploying special forces

WASHINGTON—As the United States looks increasingly to special operations forces to win wars in developing nations, the service's top special operations officer, a member of the Navy team who oversees the unit that killed Osama bin Laden, is working more autonomy to move his forces faster and outside of normal Pentagon deployment channels.

The officer, Adm. William H. McRaven, who leads the Special Operations Command, is pushing for a larger role for his elite units who have traditionally operated in the dark corners of US foreign policy. The plan would give him more autonomy to position his forces and move them faster than the normal military and global events could allow.

It would also allow the special operations forces to expand their presence in regions where they have not operated in, large numbers for the past decade, especially in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

While President Barack Obama and his Pentagon's leadership have increasingly made special operations forces their military tool of choice, similar plans in the past have been frustrated because of opposition from regional commanders and the State Department.

The military's regional commanders have been forced to decrease their authority, and some ambassadors in critical areas have voiced concerns that commanders may carry out missions that are perceived to be a low priority or even a low priority. The US is in a bit of a bind with Pakistan after the bin Laden raid.

Administration, military and

congressional officials say that the Special Operations Command has embarked on a quiet lobbying campaign to push through the transition. Pentagon and administration officials note that while the Special Operations Command is critical to the growth in its budget and personnel where the new Defense Department spending plan is released in March, as outlined in many other parts of the military that are being cut.

As decisions have been made on whether to expand McRaven's authority.

The White House and State Department declined to comment on the proposal in January.

The proposal was put forward as a new model for the military that is an age of eliminating Pentagon budgets, focusing on the growth of troops and distributing public opinion for large wars of occupation, according to Pentagon officials. Military officers and civilian contractors tied to the plan. They spoke on the condition of anonymity because no decision has been made.

Under the new concept, a significant number of special operations forces—projected at 10,000—would remain deployed around the world. While commands would be in on all the striking overseas targets and running logistics, but no significant would be the increased number of those personnel deployed on training and future missions and to gather information to help the command better predict approaching terrorist security risks.

Officials stressed that in almost all cases, special operations forces would only be called on specific missions by the regional four-star commanders.

"It's not really about focus on the global war on terrorism," McRaven said in a brief interview last week, referring to the Special Operations Command. "I don't think we're ready to do that. What it's about is how do I train support?" he is focused on the command. The new plan would mean that 80 percent of the United States' special operations forces have been deployed to the Middle East. With the military's conventional forces coming home after the full withdrawal from Iraq, McRaven wants the authority to spread his command to areas that are more secure than Iraq, where they had been deployed and to provide forces for wars after the Sept. 11 attacks.

Even more, McRaven wants the authority to quickly move his units to potential hot spots without going through the usual Pentagon process governing overseas deployments. He initially the deployment of US troops overseas began with a request from a global commander that was processed through the military's Joint Staff and placed before the defense secretary for approval, in a routine and deliberate process.

During national security threats that require for McRaven's plan. With special operations forces committed to the Middle East and Southwest Asia over the last decade, commanders in other regions are seeking more of these units in their areas.

State Department officials say they have not yet been briefed on the proposal. In the past, some ambassadors in critical areas have opposed increased deployments of special operations forces, and they have threatened to cut off diplomatic efforts of missions will be fully involved in their plans and missions. NURTURING THE FILIPINO ENTREPRENEURIAL SPIRIT

Filipinos are born entrepreneurs. From your rilly neighborhood food vendors to international export giants, Filipinos have always shown a natural knack for turning business ideas into success stories.

Proof to this is the growing Small and Medium-sized Enterprises (SME) in the Philippines. SMEs account for majority of all business establishments in the country, the largest share in Philippine entrepreneurship.

But growing a business is no mean feat. There are a lot of challenges that entrepreneurs face... finding the right business mix, keeping up with industry changes and trends and most common of all – financing.

And this is why BDO created the Small Business Loan.

Widen your reach

We make it possible for you to open more stores. Given additional capital, you can achieve your goal of setting up another outlet or shop to maximize your business' potential. Whether it be across different regions or just within your locale, you can be assured that you will be able to market your products and services in strategic areas of your choice.

Explore new markets

We enable you to expand your business. With extra financial assistance, you can capitalize on developing your business through tapping new and alternative markets or further enhancing your product line. You can foster growth and fast track your road to success by immediately responding to promising business ventures and prospects.

Invest in additional inventory

We allow you to increase your supply to meet growing demand. By means of supplementing your existing resources, you can purchase or produce more stocks to take advantage of new business opportunities. Now, doubling or tripling your inventory is easy and hassle-free!

"With BDO's Small Business Loan, we get to cater to the financing needs of different businesses – sole proprietorships, partnerships and even corporations – in various fields and industries. We offer affordable payment terms and flexible interest rates on a short-term or long-term basis, enabling SMEs to keep pace and stay abreast with the ever-changing market landscape," says Wiglio C. Ramatnat, BDO Consumer Lending Group SVP & Small Business Loan Business Head.

Available to businesses with at least P1 million annual gross sales, the BDO Small Business Loan allows you to utilize your assets as collateral to secure financing for a minimum of P1 million up to a maximum of P10 million. Payment terms range from 1 year to 10 years.

With over 700 branches nationwide, applying for a BDO Small Business Loan is quick and easy!

Call us today at 631-8000 or visit a BDO branch nearest you and let BDO be your partner in building your business. We believe in giving small businesses a chance to grow.

First Gen eyes 2 Batangas plants

Gets clearance to conduct grid impact study

By Amy R. Berns

THE LOPPEL and First Gen Corp. is looking at the feasibility of adding two new power plants in Batangas that can potentially generate as much as 1,300 megawatts (MW) as installed capacity for the Luzon grid.

Recommendations from the Department of Energy showed that the government has given First Gen the clearance to determine if it is feasible to build another 1,000-MW power plant that can be liquid fuel within Batangas. Also to be studied is the feasibility of a 300-MW and waste power plant also in the same province.

The clearance given by the DOE was for the grid impact study, which will be conducted by the national transmission network operator, National Grid Corporation of the Philippines (NGCP). The study is critical as it will determine if the electricity to be generated by the proposed power project can be absorbed by the grid or if the existing transmission lines are enough to transmit the electricity from the power plant to the substation.

The study will determine if First Gen can put up its power plants in the areas it has chosen.

A preproject has to know if the power project can be absorbed by the grid or if the facility will only cause a congestion of electricity supply.

The issuance of a clearance also comes with a letter of endorsement from the DOE to NGCP.

First Gen is ranked as the leading clean and sustainable energy company in the Philippines with accumulated capacity of 2,780 MW, which accounted for 18 percent of total installed capacity in the country today.

As of 2011, First Gen has a portfolio of 16 power generation plants that are predominantly contracted for sale under long-term power purchase agreements or other energy sales agreements. First Gen's power generation portfolio also includes hydro, solar and natural gas, waste and geothermal plants.

The company has 60 percent equity interests with the 1,000-MW in Batangas and the 300-MW San Lorenzo natural gas-fired plants, which source their fuel from the Malampaya gas field off Palawan.

Will the market keep up?

TOURNEY IN FEB. 10, Christian tradition observes this day as a feast in honor of the three kings who came to the infant Jesus to the Cathedral Church. It was then known as "The Magistrates' Day."

The feast, however, "was derived from the festival known (calendar of saints in 1769) by Pope Pius IX," according to published references. Due to this development, Feb. 14 is both feast and ending in Christian tradition as a most religious feast.

However, since Feb. 14 is not one just a feast, but of Christian tradition but also, due to its great historical value, it is considered an important day and value along with by Christian in general since on "Shrove Tuesday" is the last day.

Starting at the week just at "Happy Valentine's Day!"

General overview

Last week, the benchmark index continued to make up positive returns. Total value indexes continued strong at 147.78 billion over a volume of 30.36 billion shares. Slightly however, ended only to a net loss for the week as the PSEI index at 12,142.00 percent on a weekly basis in trading closed its day at the benchmark index level of 12,042.00.

MARKET RIDE

In comparison to the start of trading the week before, which was for the week ending Feb. 1, the weekly market performance index was up and down. For the week ending Feb. 1, the total value of business transactions amounted to 297.79 billion over a volume of 37.22 billion shares.

If you will notice, both value returns were significantly higher by about P18.82 billion or 20 percent. On the other hand, total shares transacted was obviously about 2.5 percent lower than that of last week's total market share. Based on experience, this can only mean one of two things. Either the price of most stock trading at higher prices or a year decline in stock price. The market was generally pushed up by big cap stock transactions.

Either way, one cannot conclude that the market was not relatively higher and more bullish while the market last week was weaker and bearish. This is because the market's total advance last week had moved down to only 24.05 percent or 0.52 percent advance on a weekly basis compared to the about 180 index points average weekly advance displayed by the market in the last few weeks.

Assessing the volume of the market's trading performance all the way back to January, the market's trading down since last week, and very possibly this week — was not relatively convincing.

On the first week of January, the market made a one-week advance of 121.40 points or 0.55 percent up as a closed at 4,455.56. Against the statistically moderate weekly benchmark index of 4,371.56. This was followed by another steady performance on the second week to another weekly advance of 130.47 points or 0.31 percent as it closed at 4,582.03. However, then came the market's weekly advance of 120.07 points or 0.21 percent up as it closed on the third week at 4,702.10.

Further, the market had made a total net advance equivalent to 380.94 points, a trading gain never been possible since the world equity markets crashed in 2008 as triggered by the financial meltdown and resulting economic downturn that occurred in the United States and subsequently spread to moderate the global market. Considering the still available and respectable way of the global economy, it is not difficult to imagine that as of the end of January, our market was already on a two-week recovery. That was why the market started by 0.61 percent or was 1.41 percent down at the close of trading on the fourth week at 4,675.85.

In summary, the rise of stock prices in the past weeks has been too much and too fast that while the market still continued to show higher up to last week, it is very possible that it is already losing steam. The estimated fundamental value and actual market prices of stocks in play are becoming too close to each other again at the moment.

Bottom line up

Stripping down the analysis on an individual stock level basis, foregoing correlation on the state of the market, the distinctly just taking the 12 week high and low price points means of some stocks.

Look at seven market leaders (PSEI, First Gen, San Lorenzo, etc.). In comparison, San Lorenzo's weekly average last 12 weeks from a low of P8.40 to a high of P10.20 a share. As of last Friday as the market was then opened by decreasing developments that may again be both financial returns, aimed at strengthening the global economy and the world's equity markets, the price of SANL increased from the high of P10.20 to the low of P9.40 and closed near the maximum level of P9.50.

GMAT's price performance last Friday was still back down to its market performance in a steady climb. If you look down at where its price was 12 weeks ago or even just a month ago, the price of GMAT is essentially losing steam and may likely slide sideways to lower in the coming days. GMAT's share price in the last one month ranged from the low of P16.00 established on Jan. 10 to the high of P16.00 established on Feb. 10. Its trading price of P16.00 last Friday, Feb. 10 is a clear sign that its price is not in a steady climb. Conversely, this week possibly be its maximum level as its price and last Friday was still near the higher end of its established range.

While it is unclear if the current market price of GMAT cannot be justified by sound fundamentals, it is just that its price is too high. Its current fundamental value are not yet close to market value. Considering this reality, the market price of GMAT as well as other stocks that had been in a steady trading play with the investing public may have reached too late and too far from their appropriate value and return at the moment.

In view of the foregoing observation, we may then expect the market to enter from its upward climb and proceed to "move sideways to lower."

PH bourse sees 2012 fundraising doubling Amount to be raised seen to reach record $4.7 billion

PUBLOS raised on the Philippine Stock Exchange could double to a record of about $200 billion as companies jump on the market in the lead of the IPO boom.

The expected increase would come from total public offerings, follow-on share sales and private placements.

"The amount may increase further if plans to increase exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and securities listed in the second half of the year are achieved," said Jose Sison, the publisher's president.

"We think that, during any negative situations, we're particularly close to doubling," Sison said. "It's about $200 billion of IPOs."

According to the capital markets, Sison, a former investment banker, said in an interview. Capital raised on the PSE last year hit P107.1 billion, with the IPO market ending 2011 as Asia's best performer with a 4 percent gain.

On Monday, conglomerates (PSE Capital Holdings), which owns the country's second largest lender by assets, Metropolitan Bank & Trust Co. and is now planning a public offer of as much as $271 million for the year. That followed the announcement of medium-sized lender First Philippine Bank Corp. of the Filipino group in January that it might raise $251 million.

The house has been hitting new highs almost every week since the middle of January, led by strong foreign fund inflows. Manila is the third best performer in Southeast Asia in the year.

But foreign buying on the local bourse in the first six weeks of the year totaled $71.6 billion, covering a net outflow of $26.6 billion in the same period of 2011, data from the stock exchange show.

Daily average turnover in the first six weeks of 2012 was 17.8 billion, 38 percent higher than a year ago.

"The mood is positive, even to the point of optimism in the country's prospects as a potential growth economy," said Sison.

But even optimistically, in view of the development and ability of various companies to attract by various companies."

The stock exchange is working with the securities regulator to monitor the end of Asia's IPO boom, which could increase volume of trades in the market by at least 30 percent in the last two or three exchanges in the world which do not have an IPO, including Hong Kong and London, or a similar 50%," he said.

"It is a leading best that is necessary. The ability to borrow money is the best for helping the bank for their portfolio management and, as a result, the ability to raise IPOs," he said.

ETFs are funds that track an index, a commodity or a basket of assets but trade like a stock on a stock exchange. They sell some bond funds were trading in March 2011 to the year over the securities regulator closed into following trading of the exchanges in the securities regulator. "There will probably be at least two or three local ETFs that will eventually launch," he said. Manila

A Brown unit raising funds for coal-fired power project in Panay

By Amy R. Borne

PLM Corporation Power Corp., a subsidiary of United A Brown Co. Inc., is raising $500 million to finance the financing requirements for its proposed 200 megawatt coal-fired power plant in Panay Island.

Based on a schedule on the Philippine Stock Exchange, PLM Corporation has already secured the commitment of the bank for the project, prompting the Department of Energy to submit the project as "accelerated" from "in progress."

The financial closure for the project—which is estimated to cost P10 billion for the first phase involving 120 MW in power generation capacity—is expected by July this year. $500 Capital is now funding about 70 percent of the project.

In a condition in the project's schedule, the DOE and the project's financial closure should conclude before the finalization of the 2012 power development plan and transmission development plan. "Otherwise, we will not fund your project back to indicative," the DOE said in a letter to PLM Corporation.

The DOE letter explained that it wanted the company to be able to push through with the power project in view of the unmet capacity gap in the Visayas by 2015.

"We are looking at this project to provide the required capacity by 2015, given that the current commissioning of new projects will be in the third quarter of 2013 for Phase 1 and November 2016 for Phase 2," the DOE said.

A Brown is the holding company of the Brown Group of Companies, which is primarily engaged in real estate development, infrastructure development and mining. It is now starting to venture into power generation.

In 2010, A Brown formed two subsidiaries, Inter Thermal Consolidated Holdings Corp. and Power Consolidated Holdings Corp., to handle the purchase of a power company.

A Brown, through Inter Thermal, earlier acquired DRAC Corporation (Power Corp. Brown's parent firm, DRAC Power Corp.). The transaction included DRAC's coal-fired power projects, which now then being planned to generate only 120 MW.

The power company was renamed Inter Consolidated Power Corp. (IPCPC) in 2011 and will be used as A Brown's corporate vehicle for its entry into power generation.

Tune Hotel opens in Angeles

ANGELES CITY—International hotel giant hotel chain Tune Hotels opened its 14th, newest branch along San Juan Avenue last week.

Mark Armstrong, senior vice president for sales and marketing of Tune Hotels International Ltd., said Tune Hotels here would give its customers choices according to their actual needs. And Tune Hotels here would open its own limited service hotels under a franchise agreement with Tune Hotels.

Armstrong said the hotel rate for a standard room was P100.

"Typical add-ons will also be available. If the guest wants to have a cable TV installation, he will pay extra. If he wants air conditioning or Wi-Fi (internet) or towels and toiletries, he will pay for those. But if the guest doesn't really need those, he doesn't have to pay for them. What we basically offer is a more reasonable rate in a nice, clean, safe and secured place today," he said.

The rates for add-on services are P200 to P250 for air conditioning, P100 for HAPPILY young. Priests gather for the World Pk. Soccer Cup.

Men of the cloth take to the court

Fr. Fernando Suarez,
the healing priest,
gathers almost 200
priests and a few bishops in their quest for a sound mind and body

By Anna A. Jarbes

CLOSE TO 200 priests from around the country trooped to the court last week in a unique show of support, friendship and camaraderie. No, not to the Senate impeachment court, but the tennis courts of Manila Polo Club in Forbes Park, Makati.

"We weren't had a passion for sports. I believe in wellness. I believe in promoting health. There's an holistic connection to the mind than sports," said the healing priest and tennis enthusiast Fr. Fernando Suarez.

The dramatic rise in popularity of tennis among priests is no accident. "We have discussed the sport, but we realized he was able to connect other members of the clergy to play tennis."

Traveling around the country and abroad for his healing ministry made it more convenient for him to spread the love.

Soon he recruited parishes to build tennis courts and, a few years later, founded the first ever National Tennis Tournament for Priests, also known as the Pk. Soccer Cup.

Suarez, who turned 45 last Sunday, is far from the stereotypical celibate priest. He gaffes like a teenager, he runs both his eyes when he gets excited, and he gets going fast and slow when he gets excited. On this day he was impassioned about tennis-like tennis, Pk. Cup, he preached.

He fell in love with tennis when he entered the ministry in 1981. Although he has always been active in his parish, playing basketball, football and volleyball—it was tennis, he said, that made his desire for him.

"Everywhere I go, everywhere I go, tennis events. Usually they have basketball courts but I discovered tennis was not just that tennis is a good sport," said Suarez.

Now in his third year, the Pk. Soccer Cup has grown from a mere 50 priests to over a hundred. That's not counting the many more who couldn't make it due to lack of finances and/or family work and obligations.

The Cup, he says, has only double winners. Instead of only prize of the year, this year he decided to award the champion a trip for him to the Holy Land. They will also be the official representatives of the country during the first World Tennis Championship for Priests in Poland in June 19-22 this year.

"This is going to be the main prize from now on, the main prize must go to the Holy Land but not affect the trip. I'm thankful to be able to go and spend with the well-connected," Suarez said, laughing, one hand holding his stomach.

Donating the Cup

Priests from the Vatican have always dominated the Cup. This year was no exception. The team of Fr. Daniel Lucido and Fr. Alex Quinsig from Cebu, the leading champions since 2010, won first prize.

Lucido, also a priest, said he started playing tennis when he received his ordination in 1981 to give himself a break. "I was always been the sport of performance among priests in Cebu, bonding with priests greatly meant having privileges, right?"

"I haven't been able to practice it because I wanted to be the priest," said he said. The tennis club where he plays — Skip Ruben E. Labajo, president of the Cebu Golf Club, said the Lottis-Ducos team is bold and competitive. They make a strong team, undisciplined in the third time in a row.

Competition, however, is never the high light of the Gup. They are here, he said, to be in comparison with other people all around you. It's not every day, he said, that you meet other people with the same passion as I do.

"The major athletes now are starting to learn tennis through the tournament. You need to discipline your body to do what it wants. If you have a sound body and mind you will also be spiritually sound and strong," Liberto said.

Falout's daughter Felony, now 16, is one of his mother's staunch supporters. Even if he were exporting to win, he'd been in all these campaigns. Playing bands since 1972, it has been his passion way before it became what it is today. Felony, who has a commanding alto voice and witty personality, said he joined the Ft. Stevens Gap to join the company of other artists.

The able horse to win, of course? Whiskey. "I'm not everything, but I'm not a smoking ring," Fukunaga said, laughing. His first love when he works, he told, the purity of old age, but he is still a half-lighting smoke on his jalisco and he hoped his partner was younger and stronger. He was later overheard saying these should be no age category events at the Ringo Show.

Running up St. Aidan's stadium, however, boxer Owen will be single matches next time. Playing tennis near high school, the 22-year-old Wideman is a full-time champion in the single matches in Negro Creek.

"Tennis has always been my sport. It's my way of relaxation," Williams said.

Salomon holds running event in Tagaytay Highlands March 31

ON MARCH 11, Salomon will be leaving the Indianus Club Highway at the fork, green signs of Taguay (Ptychocheilus).

It included three different test series for all running levels. Runners began on the middle 1.5 distance (include a road-to-trail course, with 40 and 10 distances for beginners and intermediate runners).

The 24th category will include vertical accepts that contain the "secondary rail" Johnson railroads, being a "mainline"

Included in the sale trees are the rare blue and rising chip with orange-brown red grain—a Japanese Rising Chip, Sakinaka Rising, Sengoku and a common technical one. But also, French will also be provided for the Republic of Armenia.

The National Trail Runners event is a good run event, meaning no plastic cups and bums will be given away and used. All runners are encouraged to bring their own hydration and more tea.

Behind the scenes of an 'Annebisyosa' dream

By Raymond Diaz
Contributor

I HAD a show with Sarah Geronimo that day, and while waiting for makeup, I checked my Twitter. As of 9 a.m., all tickets for the Annebisyosa concert had been sold out. The only ones left were standing-room tickets. People were even texting and tweeting me to ask if I could get them in.

I smiled. I remembered the night I was talking with me in front of me. I was talking with me in front of me. I was talking with me in front of me.

My crew and I arrived at the theater around 6 p.m. From outside the theater, I could already hear the sound of instruments. I understood when it was, because I was talking with me in front of me. I was talking with me in front of me.

And on her left was more other than that. Annebisyosa, and accompanying her. On the stage, she should have been the face of the evening. But she was not. She was not. She was not.

After a two-minute break, Annebisyosa came on stage and did her number with me. I was talking with me in front of me. I was talking with me in front of me.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of 10-year-old children. The program consisted of three sessions per week, each lasting 30 minutes. The children were divided into two groups: a control group and an experimental group. The experimental group performed a series of exercises designed to improve cardiovascular endurance, muscular strength, and flexibility. The control group did not participate in any physical activity. After 12 weeks, the experimental group showed significant improvements in all three areas of physical fitness compared to the control group. The results of this study suggest that a structured physical education program can effectively improve the physical fitness of 10-year-old children.

the authors' findings are consistent with the results of other studies. For example, the authors found that the use of a computer-based system for data collection and analysis was associated with a significant increase in the number of correct answers. This finding is consistent with the results of other studies that have shown that computer-based systems can improve the accuracy of data collection and analysis.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet on the body composition and physical fitness of obese women. The subjects were 20 obese women who were randomly assigned to either a diet or a control group. The diet group was instructed to consume 1000 kcal less than their maintenance level, while the control group was instructed to consume their maintenance level. The diet group lost significantly more weight and body fat than the control group. The diet group also showed significant improvements in physical fitness, including increased aerobic capacity, muscle strength, and endurance. The control group showed no significant changes in body composition or physical fitness. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week, 1000 kcal energy deficit diet is an effective intervention for improving body composition and physical fitness in obese women.

Ice Cream Love Story

Do you have an ice cream love story?

These stories range from the first time you decided to treat your partner with your fave payoche. How about the moment you decided to celebrate your Valentine dinner date with a sweet ice cream? Aren't these special moments much more delicious with the most delicious ice cream on hand?

Dairy Queen, the largest ice cream chain in the world, believes in heartful stories where they are part of people's most special moments in life. Moreover, it strives to make an ordinary day more fun. It doesn't only provide a satisfying dessert option, but also reaches every person by capturing the hearts of its taste buds.

So, whether they are craving for the creamy blend of their Blended and Mashed or their favorite soft topped off with luscious strawberry and chocolate or their yummy frozen cakes, customers will always find it to be more than just a sweet treat.

It was in 2008 when the first Dairy Queen in the Philippines under the Aquino Group was opened in Gateway Mall in Alabaster Center. Its reputation as the "the number one ice cream in the world" has become a household name in its service area offering here in the country.

This Valentine's, Dairy Queen offers heart-shaped Dilly Bars. You can now enjoy your all-time favorite Dilly Bars soft serve ice cream dipped in luscious chocolate coating & drizzled with strawberry in a specially design heart. Another special is the Chocolate Lover's Rocky Road & Double Dutch Blended.

Currently Dairy Queen has 45 branches in the country and the company looks at adding more stores this year. With consistent growth, Dairy Queen branches have provided many people, especially working students, with employment opportunities. Its local stores have been some of the most competitive immediately, which also highlighted that Filipino hospitality has always been one of the world's best. Their service was also much possible because their employees all loved the product.

If there's one thing that most Filipinos believe, it is that ice cream has always been a comfort food. People usually resort to an ice cream fix as a way to make themselves feel better or to pamper themselves after a day's work. It is more than just a food treat, but also a reliable companion and friend.

Welcome to the Ice Cream Cake Factory

Dairy Queen also boasts of its state-of-the-art ice cream cake factory located at the New Alab Mall supervised by award-winning cake decorators who have the flair and the experience to provide artistically designed mouthwatering ice cream cakes for Filipinos.

100% Ice Cream Cakes

Among the highlights of Dairy Queen's array of cakes is the Blended Cake, a new addition to the popular 100% ice cream cakes at their bakes. It comes in Oreo, M&M and Chocolate Bakes. Rayon, and changed the way ice cream cakes are made and enjoyed.

Dairy Queen has debunked the myth that the ice cream business is saturated. It has continued to serve many Filipinos any day of the year with their consistent concepts and delicious flavors that have made ice cream more than just a dessert experience. It has been part of every wonderful moment worth cherishing.

Online dating: some safe tips

Dating opportunities can be very limited these days, especially if you're spending long hours in the workplace, not prepared to caring for family or living in a relatively small community.

Today's society often only has an opportunity to meet someone in a social gathering. Searching for "Mr. or Ms. Right" is often like finding a needle in a haystack, and the prospect of spending Sunday night in a bar or club to find one may not be the best idea.

Online dating, however, comes with many advantages, and offers a great alternative for meeting people. Before it is considered a very modern and socially acceptable way to meet other singles.

Increasingly, singles are using online dating sites to meet other people who share similar interests. It's common for singles who have entered into a serious relationship to meet online dating sites to find their single friends, or to find a new partner to meet in person.

Online dating sites are justifying to most women in a bar, or to return to date colleagues or work associates. They enjoy the safety—and the fun—of meeting people online.

However, this online dating looking for love online, there are many risks involved in online dating. Here are some tips to help you stay safe while using online dating sites.
